The seasons

Key seasons: Spring – summer

Vittel was originally a rural village whose fortunes changed in the 19th century following the recognition of the healing properties of its mineral water in 1854. The spa town developed rapidly, attracting visitors seeking wellness and giving rise to a rich Belle Époque heritage. Over time, Vittel has become a renowned destination combining spa treatments, architectural elegance and sporting activities, and to this day retains its identity as a dynamic spa town that is bustling all year round.

HISTORY

VITTEL THERMAL SPA

In 1854, Louis Bouloumié acquired a spring in Vittel, convinced of its therapeutic properties.

By 1855, the water had been officially recognised for the treatment of several conditions, marking the start of the spa industry and the establishment of the town’s first spa centre.

Over time, the spa industry flourished thanks to specialised treatments, suitable facilities and an environment conducive to well-being.

Today, it remains a key part of Vittel’s identity, with the town establishing itself as a renowned destination for health, relaxation and well-being.
